PROGRAM SCHEDULE

Discussion of major changes in Florida law pertaining to child support and alimony which include:

- Changes in the threshold for triggering “substantial time-sharing”;
- Mandatory findings of fact related to the unallocated child support for multiple children;
- The establishment of specific requirements for imputation of income;
- The assignment of time-sharing by military members;
- The defining of short, moderate and long term marriages; and
- The creation of a new type of alimony called “durational alimony.”

Topics to be addressed include: effective dates of the changes ♦ how the law applies ♦ how the legislation will effect your pending and future cases ♦ how the law may effect the modification of existing judgments ♦ the history that led to the evolution of the new law
